

Cork Migrant Centre x Cork Printmakers

The Young Print Collective

Exhibition Launch 12.10.2022

Artists: Amal Hope, Elton Sibanda, Fionnuala O'Connell,
Reem, Viktoria Kondratieva, Yeaneah O'Connell

Image by Clare Keogh

The Exhibition

Working in screen-print, etching and relief processes the artists' use themes of identity, culture, perception and belonging. The artists developed their work for the exhibition with the support of Cork Printmakers staff and tutors through ongoing training and independent practice.

The exhibition gives voice to the artists and their unique perspectives, expressing feelings of duality and otherness, and their experience of connectedness through their artwork.

Some of the artists are inspired by ideas around family, womanhood, empowerment, and the body. Utilising photographic and hand drawn self-portraits in the development of their prints to express these ideas.

The exhibition places the artists experiences and work within the context of Nano Nagle Place, a site of ongoing creative collaboration between Cork Printmakers, Cork Migrant Centre and Nano Nagle Place and where the artists first worked with Cork Printmakers in 2019 and 2020 before the establishment of the Young Print Collective.

Photography by John Beasley

Photography by John Beasley

Discover more...

To follow the journey of The Young Print Collective, follow Cork Printmakers on Facebook, Twitter, Instagram.